

Ware & Kay LLP move into mediation

Jonathan Leach, a family Solicitor at Ware & Kay LLP Solicitors has recently qualified as a Family Mediator.

Jonathan is already highly experienced as a Collaborative Lawyer and specialises in all matters relating to relationship breakdown. This additional qualification will enable him to offer a wider range of solutions for dispute resolution to his clients.

Jonathan explains; "Mediation is a process in which those involved in family breakdown appoint an impartial third person, such as myself, to assist them to communicate better with one another. Through a constructive dialogue they can reach their own agreed and informed decisions, concerning some or all of the issues relating to separation, divorce, children, finance or property, by negotiation."

“The aim is to agree arrangements which both parties are happy with, rather than decisions having to be made in court regarding a couple's future arrangements for their children and finances. One of the benefits of mediation is that it can reduce hostility and also lead to a more positive on-going relationship in the future.”

Jonathan Leach is one of only a small number of trained family mediators in North Yorkshire and adds to the existing legal services offered.

Ware & Kay LLP who celebrated their bicentennial last year has 4 partners and 47 staff with offices in York and Wetherby and operate throughout the North.

Ware & Kay's Jonathan Leach has extensive experience in all aspects of relationship breakdown.
